The organisation was founded in 1979 by Agneta Nilsson, in Los Angeles, and has received international recognition for its work. Today, SWEA has over 8,500 members globally and is one of the largest non-profit Swedish organisations in the world.

SWEA London was founded in 1989 and has grown to be an organisation today of approximately 200 people of all ages. Work includes the support of projects and educational opportunities having connections to Sweden via scholarships.

The magazine is a free publication and is distributed via its members and selected venues around London, such as the Swedish Church, Swedish School, Swedish Embassy and Chamber of Commerce. The full magazine is also available on our website at www.swea.org/london.
